JANESVILLE DAY CROWD EQUAL TO
FORMER RECORDS

IDEAL WEATHER EN-
ABLES 12,000 TO ATTEND
BIG FAIR.

IS GREAT SUCCESS
Excellent Race Program, Free
Acts and Fireworks Thrill Thousands.

Under sunshines skies on a most beautiful August day, thousands of men, women and children, representing a large portion of the city's population descended home and business and business Thursday to make Janesville day at the fair and livestock exposition an unqualified success.

Close to 10,000 persons paid admission to the fair Thursday and with the stockholders, and others admitted to the fair, the exhibitors and in other capacities brought in a total attendance for the day to be between 11,000 and 12,000 persons.

Ideal weather made the day possible and it probably will stand as the most successful Janesville day in history.

One of the fair visitors was George Conlins, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, who made a short address during the afternoon, speaking from the grand stand.

Setting Is Perfect

The setting was perfect for a big day, with the finest agricultural and art products of Rock and other portions of Southern Wisconsin on exhibit, a long midway with numerous shows, rides and stands where one could dispose of any amount of money, a racing program that lived up to Janesville's reputation as the Lexington of the North, and splendid refreshment.

All that was needed was a large crowd, and that came to meet the expectations of officials.

Postponement of the Janesville day program from Wednesday when rain and sultry weather put a crimp in plans, served only to make the popular and more anxious to enjoy the pleasure, which came early and stayed late. Husband and wives came with their children and their companions, forgetting home comforts in the enjoyment of thrills that come but once a year.

OL' MAN NOAH HAS
ANNUAL HOMECOMING
DURING FAIR WEEK

An old man with a long coat, much-faded and worn, walked up to Pete Champlin at Main and Milwaukee street this morning and after looking the officer over as he stood imperturbably
in the rain, said in a quiet voice:

"You can tell me where the ark
is anchored."

Pete immediately looked around to see if Archie Cullen had come to town and given an eccentric border-er a ride but apparently the visitor was traveling on his own.

He knew nothing about the ark
what he said, he said.

"Why, my word, of course, I'm Noah and hereing, it was time for the Janesville fair, I came here last week. It's always the wettest place in the world at Janesville during the week. Yesterday was sunshiny and I had to keep it dry, so I did," he continued querulously. "But want the ark," he said as he moved along.

"Maybe you will find it out where they are paving or back of the horse barns at the fair," called Pete, but Noah was stamping along toward the river, staff in hand, his whiskers
tucked under one arm, driving a car while intoxicated.

La Follette Hits Klan in Letter

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Washington—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, independent candidate for president, in a letter made public today, declared he is "utterly opposed to the evident purposes of the secret organization, known as the Ku Klux Klan, as disclosed by its public acts."

"It cannot long survive," continued
the senator, "relying on the sound judgment and good sense of our people it is my opinion that such a movement is foredoomed. It has within its own body the seeds of its death."

The letter was addressed to Robert P.
Serling, newspaper publisher and given out for publication at Senator La Follette's office. Declaring it "unfortunate that questions involving religious opinion and other questions unrelated to the vital issue of the restoration of the government to the people have now raised this in such critical years of our national history," the latter added:

"Such controversy fed upon and inflame prejudice and passion to the exclusion of issues involving the very life of the government itself."

"Any one familiar with my record, especially in my own state, knows that I have always stood without reservation against Klan activities between races, classes and creeds.
I hold that every citizen is entitled to the full exercise of his constitutional rights."

INTER-ALLIED
DEBT PARLEY
IS DISCUSSED

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

London—The allied delegates to the international conference this afternoon, discussed the feasibility of holding a conference in Paris in the near future to discuss the question of inter-allied war debts.

The proposed conference would be entirely separate from the other Parly parleys which will concern themselves with the allocation of reparations.

The inquiry is to determine whether court proceedings will be brought to compel certification of Moran's name
as a candidate for re-election.

Moran's petitions failed to couple with election requirements, the attorney general's office said. Similar ruling is understood to have been made by the attorney general's department.

Observers at the international conference believe it will be decided to hold the debt discussions in Paris at an early date.

The Americans declared that the question was entirely beyond their competence, and that they would not even remain in the conference room
while such an issue was under consideration.

CAMP GRANT AUG. 28

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Park—S. E. Bostwick, Eau Claire, brother of Mrs. Grace Pease, whose lifeless body was found floating in Lake Mendota here in 1922, prepared today to return to Eau Claire and place information collected during his stay in the Wisconsin conference on the military exercises of the Ruhle and the maintenance of the Rhinebund system.

The Ruhle, meantime, had decided to send his personal secretary general to London to confer with the date when he would appear before the conference, so that the next encounter meeting Wednesday, could fix a date for convoking parliament to hear the final report on the London negotiations.

This action of the cabinet was apparently taken in ignorance of Mr.
Herrick's decision to return to Paris
now, as the foreign office had not been informed up to noon today of the minister's intention to call a special cabinet meeting on Sunday.

COUNTY HERD TO MONROE NEXT WEEK

Awards Made on Guernseys, Brown Swiss, Herefords, Polls and Horses.

The Rock county show herd cattle came through the Janesville fair winning 21 championships, 45 blue ribbons for first places and 12 seconds. The judging of livestock was completed Thursday evening at the Janesville fair. The county herd, 75 entries, will be taken to Monroe for the Green county fair next week, with Robert Hedges judging the dairy breeds.

Green county is collecting a strong collection of Holsteins and it will be a close, interesting race for top honors on the breed. Last year Rock county walked away with the bulk of the Holstein premiums with W. L. Moser judging.

Although the county herd Guernseys were without competition, there was a good crowd in the stock pavilion here to watch the judging.

May King's Duke of Waukesha was named by Ray Hulce, judging as grand champion bull of the breed, with the "imported" calf, Westview General of Ephram Hipe, Edgerton, junior champion. The Guernsey herd was in splendid condition and showed to a marked advantage. Hulce lectured on the awards carried on a practical demonstration on the value of breeding for good type.

Latonia of the Vanekos, owned by W. A. Munn, Janesville, was selected as grand champion Guernsey cow. This cow is a fine record production animal and except for size is difficult to fault. Edgerton's Goldie, senior yearling, one of the finest animals in the entire Rock county herd string, was named junior champion and won some time before Hulce put the older cow grand champion over this young one.

"There is correct type, animals most pleasing to the eye," declared Hulce. "They carry general dairy characteristics that go for any breed and show distinct Guernsey type."

Hippe Bull Wins. In the competition classes the Kelllogg and Hertert herd bull was a winner and in the senior bull class the Hippie entry was first, a calf from the Muun farm second and third from W. J. Dougall, Deloit, third, all three being good animals. Animals from the Muun farm won the other bull classes.

For also cows there were three in the ring, Latonia the champion, a larger cow owned by A. R. Hoard, Koskikong, and a smaller cow owned by Muun. The Hoard cow was placed second in the senior yearling, the Goldie half-yearling, and the entry of J. W. Crist, Clinton, second, and the other classes were filled with entries from the Muun herd. All the group classes were won by the Muun herd entries.

The age Guernsey bull is showing better than last year, carrying less

PEACHES WILL BE SCARCE THIS YEAR

Canning Season Expected to Open Next Week With TEXAS Crop.

Next week will see the opening of the canning season for peaches, according to Janesville merchants who predict a rather scarce crop. Michigan peaches they say, will be almost unobtainable and those which will be on the market will be of only fair quality. Most merchants plan to get their supplies from Texas, where the crop is said to be good. Some peaches in small baskets are on the market now, but fruits this week, being sold at 17 to 25 cents a basket. There are as yet no canning varieties seen, but a few states are expecting their shipments Monday, and all will have them by the middle of the week.

A few red raspberries, the wind-up of the season at 17½ to 20 cents a pint, and gooseberries, in two quarts for 25 cents, are practically the only home-grown fruits on the markets this week. The gooseberries are considerably cheaper than they have been.

Plums and Grapes. Plums predominate among the shipped in kinds, with the blue varieties at 12 to 20 cents a dozen, and the red ones at 15 to 25 cents. The California Wixons are 20 to 25 cents, and nectarines, 15 cents. Green California grapes seem more plentiful this week, than at any time since early in the spring, and are reasonably priced at 20 cents a pound.

Though they have been on the market for the past two weeks, blueberries are still scarce and high priced, selling for 20 cents a quart at those stores which are handling them. Their season is not expected to open for another two weeks. Melons are abundant at 10 to 15 cents each, while the Illinois variety down to two for 10. First of the honeydews are in this week-end at 25 to 30 cents each.

Bananas continue to bring 10 cents a pound and red ones are expected early next week, which will sell a cent or two lower.

Oranges are 25 to 50 cents dozen, according to the size and quality, and the new apples, 5 and 10 cents. Eat-aways are approximately 10 cents lower, 40 cents a dozen, 25 cents a pound, as last week. Whole sale dealers state that they will probably buy but few northern cherries, but they are purchased by consumers in huge amounts for canning.

Potatoes Are Lower. The potato market this week is extremely weak, with large supplies all of excellent quality to purchase from northern dealers. Retailers will sell as low as 25 cents per peck on Saturday. The sweet-potatoes which are on display go for 11½ to 15 cents a pound.

Among the other vegetables are home-grown sweet corn at 29 to 30 cents a dozen, 29 cents below the last supply seen here, celery at 5 to 10 cents a stalk; cucumbers, 10 to 15 cents each; beets, three for 5 cents; carrots, 5 to 10 cents; radishes and onions, 5 cents; parsnips, two bunches for 15 cents; cabbage, 3 to 4 cents; peas, three pounds for 25 cents; head lettuce, 20 to 25 cents; each wax beans, three pounds for 25 cents; and peppers, four for 5 cents.

Eggs and butter have been extremely steady, prices not changing more than one or two cents through the summer. Fresh eggs are 30 cents, and butter, 35 to 42 cents.

COMINGS DECRIES HUGE ARMY FUND

600 Millions for War Forces
Only 56 Millions for Agriculture.

Refusing to talk on politics and his candidacy for governor of the state, George F. Comings, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, spoke for six minutes to a crowd that packed the grand stand at the Janesville fair Thursday afternoon on the subject of taxation.

Declaring that taxation is the greatest enemy to the lives of Americans, Mr. Comings said, "We can either lift up society or throw it down. Mr. Comings said that not much could be expected towards lessening the burdens of taxation until "we as a nation spend less for war and destructive arts."

"Today in Washington they have appropriated $300,000,000 for the forces of war and $55,000,000 for agriculture," he said. "More for war than agriculture, education and other constructive forces put together. What we need to do as a people is to educate ourselves to outlaw war and educate the rising generation."

Mr. Comings said that American is ruled by monied interests in concentrating rather than distributing wealth, which closes the liberty of opportunity rather than increasing them.

Proposed of the fair and its purpose, Mr. Comings dwelt on the perfect system of agriculture of Denmark, which he apparently views as the criterion for the world.

"In Denmark the farmer receives 80 to 90 cents of the consumer's dollar," Mr. Comings said. "In America, because we have failed to learn the lesson of co-operation, the farmer receives but 65 cents of the consumer's dollar."

Everything should be done to help the prosperity of the farmer, he said, for it is well known that if he prospers everyone does likewise.

Mr. Comings speaks in Brothwood Friday at a farmers' picnic.

Colonel Major Zundt, the Argentinian aviator engaged in attempting around the world flight, arrived today from Ischia.

SHOW FOLK FALL IN LOVE HERE; ARE VED IN ROCKFORD

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Rockford—A number of the traveling players came to a climax in Judge Fred E. Carpenter's office yesterday afternoon. A happy climax it was, too, with a marriage ceremony furnishing the piece de resistance.

In love after a few weeks' acquaintance, Clarence Cheshire, 22, of Rockford, Texas, and Legretta Heinz, 22, from Atlanta, Ga., both working with the Wortham Shows, came to Judge Carpenter yesterday and told him their desire to be married.

The pair met in Janesville last stop of Wortham Shows before coming here. Cheshire is a lightning sketch artist. His wife is a fancy dancer. She was introduced by his hot sketch. He met the fancy way she danced in a Janesville playhouse. So Miss Heinz joined the traveling shows and came to Rockford.

Judge Carpenter wed them, gave them the judicial blessing and sent them on their way rejoicing.

September with the prospects of a program being staged during July.

As soon as the fair was closed, Friday, permission was given to move the exhibits, livestock and horses.

The clerks started paying premiums in the afternoon and checks were waiting for the winners in the livestock exhibits and the boys and girls of the junior clubs, who received awards in a $200 in cash awards.

The bulk of the stock and race horses will go to Monroe for the Green County fair next week.

Night Fair On

The fair grounds was again a "messy" place on Friday, tents being taken down and everything flooded.

It was impossible to schedule the night fair because the large part of the explosives were damaged by the moisture. Housed in a tent, the fireworks, white not ruined, were damaged sufficiently so that it was out of the question to dry them out before evening. Fully one-third of the fireworks put up Thursday night failed to function, and many of those used were slow in starting and less spectacular than under good conditions.

The rain stopped late in the forenoon, but inspection of the track, paths and stock barns showed that continuation of the fair was impossible.

NEWLY PAVED STREETS ON SWEEPER PROGRAM

With the completion of reinforced concrete paving on Pleasant, North Washington and North Pearl streets, Mineral Point and Fourth avenues, these streets have been added to the schedule of the city's motor pick-up sweeping machine. They are being visited at present by the sweepers because they are being kept in excellent condition. According to Steve Gardner, operator, the machine performs perfectly on the new paving because of the unusually smooth surface. As more streets are paved, they will be added to the sweeper program.

MISTRESS WILDING:

A ROMANCE, BY RAFAEL SABATINI.

Author of "Semounouche," "Captain Blood," "Fortune's Fool," etc.)
Sir Rowland disclaimed to have heard of the singular happenings of that busy night.

He went back to the sign of The Ship overlooking the Cross and, kicking off his sodden shoes, he stepped quietly in the room of which shattered door and broken window reminded him of his odd interview with Ruth, and of the comedy of love she had enacted to detain him there. Then the thought of it entered him: the part she had played appealed to his retrospective mind almost a wanton's part—for all that in name she was his wife. And yet, underlying a certain irrepressible naught, came the reflection that, after all, her purpose had been to save him. Her words had been a sweet enough to have convinced that other bittersweet, had he not insisted upon setting it down entirely to her gratitude and her sense of justice. She intended to repay the debt in which she had stood to him since, at the risk of his own life and fortune, he had rescued her brother from the clutches of the Lord-Lieutenant at Trenton.

He sighed heavily as he thought of the results that had attended his compulsory wedding of her. In the intensity of his passion, in the blindness of his vanity, which made him confident—gloriously confident—that did he make himself her husband, she herself would make of him her lover for long, had committed an unorthodoxy of which it seemed he might never cleanse himself in life. There was but one amend, as he had told her. Let him make it, and perhaps she would—out of gratitude, if out of no other feeling—come to think more kindly of him; and then night it seemed to him, he sat alone in that mean chamber, that it were better and a sweeter thing to earn some measure of her esteem by death than to continue in a life that inspired her hatred and resentment. From which it will be seen how utterly he disbelieved the protestations she had uttered in seeking to detain him. They were, however, a part of a scheme, a trick to kill him while Monmouth and his officers were being butchered. And she had gone the length of saying she loved him! He regretted that, as she was convinced of its untenability, she would not share his love for him? She hated him, because she hated him; she did not owe to lie to him—once with suggestions and this time with actual expression of affection—that she might gain her ends: ends that concerned her brother and Sir Rowland Blake. The name was a very good fit to his passion and despair.

She struggled now, thinking that he would be too hampered to compel her to his will. He became angry, and set her down beside him, one arm still holding her. "Look you, mistress," he told her fiercely, "living or dead, you come with me to Faversham. Choose now."

His tone was such that she never doubted he would carry out his threat. And so in dull despair she submitted, hoping that Faversham might be a place where she could recognize and respect a bairn. If fainting, she allowed him to swing her to the withers of his horse. Thus they threaded their way in the dim starlight through the trees towards the gate. It stood open, and they passed out into the lane. There Sir Rowland mounted his horse to the trot, which he increased to a gallop when he was over the bridge and clear of the town.

CHAPTER XXI

The Sentence

Mr. Wilding, as we know, was to remain at Bridgewater for the purpose of collecting from Mr. Newington the sum which had been imposed upon him. Is it not plain clear whether Monmouth really the fullness of the treachery at the merchant's house, and whether he understood that, stricken with apprehension at the thought of parting with so considerable a portion of his fortune, Mr. Newington had not more than a hundred pounds left under his bed? And could it not be realized that he was explicitly indifferent, and lest we should be doing him an injustice, by assuming this we had better give him the benefit of the doubt, and take it that in the subsequent bustle of departure, his mind was filled with the prospect of the night attack, and not upon his uncle's army at Sedgemoor? he thought no more either of Mr. Newington or of Mr. Wilding. The latter, as we know, had no place in the rebel army; although a man of his hands, he was not a trained soldier, and rather inclined that he may fully have intended to draw his sword for Monmouth when he came, yet circumstances had led to his continuing after Monmouth's landing the more diplomatic work of movement-man. In which he had been engaged for the months that had followed it.

So it befell that when Monmouth's army marched out of Bridgewater at eleven o'clock on that Sunday night not to make for Gloucester and Cheshire, as was generally believed, but to fall upon the encamped Faversham at Sedgemoor and slaughter the royal army in their beds. Mr. Wilding was left behind. Trenchard was in command of his troop of horse, and Mr. Wilding had for only company his thoughts touching

TODAY'S MARKET

GRAIN

Chicago Review. Corn made a rapid upturn in value today as a result of active buying on the part of the heavy buyers on the corn crop market. Especial notice was taken of the fact that the condition of the crop, 70.7, is the lowest possible yield ever noted in the rates of largest production, Iowa and Illinois. Selling broadened out on the higher prices. The offerings were more numerous and the quotations, which ranged from 11c to 1.65 bushel, December, $1.04; 20c to 1.65, were followed by an irregular advance of more than three cents a bushel in some cases.

Cash buyers refused to follow the advance and succeeded in forcing a downward later. The close was very quiet, $1.24 to 1.65 net higher, Dec. $1.015 G. 1.05.

Wheat at first tended downward in price, being affected by a decline in price of the heavy wheat in the highly favorable construction placed on the United States government crop report as to wheat. Export business, however, was strong and the market, however, did not go to substantial gains. After opening unchanged to lower, Sept. $1.25; G. 1.25, and Dec. $1.30, wheat closed well around to well above yesterday's finish.

Subsequently breaking of the drought in Argentina brought about a decline in wheat prices and the crop was unchanged but not lower, Sept. $1.20; 20c to 1.25, and Dec. $1.25; G. 1.25.

Oil, remunerated by corn, started unchanged to 2c higher. This later showed gains of one cent or more.

Provisions rose with corn and hogs.
